Bade People Good-Night.

After exchanging a few pleasantries with the people and bidding them goodnight, the President retired to his state-room amid tremendous cheering. At this juncture Capt. Harry S. A telegram received by the President tonight from St. Louis says the weather is fine and all St. Louis is looking for-ward with joyful anticipation to Mr. Roosevelt's visit.

Train a Magnificent One.

Train a Magnificent One.

The President's special is one of the finest trains of Pullman cars ever handled over the tracks of the Pennsylvania system. The measures of precaution which are taken render impossible any delay or accident in so far as human ingenuity can accomplish this. A "pilot' train has preceded the President's special all of the disfance from Washington and will continue to St. Louis, being two miles ahead of the official party.

All division engineers who have any jurisdiction over any part of the track over which the train passes were ordered out for a special inspection to cover the time until the President's party passed over the respective divisions.

Esides the "pilot" train, a track walker is on every mile of the road between Washington and St. Louis, covering the mile of track just ahead of that being travelled by the "pilot" train.

SMOOT GROWS INTO DISFAVOR

Thousands Opposed to Bossism.

Selfish Compact With Former Enemy Displeases Party and Church Friends.

Growing Belief That Unless Apostle Is Called to Taw He Will Make Peace Impossible.

The compact entered into between Reed Smoot and George Sutherland, whereby the aspostle is to deliver enough support to his former enemy to make him a United States Senator, in consideration that Sutherland assist him with a part of the Gentile element of Salt Lake, does not set well with the average Utahn.

Not only are hundreds of the Gentiles disgusted at this wholesale bargaining of the rights of the people, but many of the most faithful friends of the church.

Since it was announced that the deal had been finally closed and other aspirants for Senatorial favor were given to understand that it is not worth their trouble to begin an organization, the delivery of the Legislature by Smoot to Sutherland hus been discussed with various degrees of

What They Have Done.

What They Have Done.

Some are asking what Reed Smoot ever did for the Republican party of Utah or for the people in general in the State that he should, without consulting their wishes, enter into such a contract with any man. Others are asking what George Sutherland has done to merit the election save an agreement to cease his fight on Reed Smoot. He was but two years ago—even less than two years ago—one of the most rabid critics of the election of the apostle. He denounced the church in general for permitting an apostle to aspire to a seat in Congress, and he criticled Joseph F. Smith in particular. There are not a few of the friends of the former Congressman who remember with what bitterness he characterized this interference of the ecclesiastics—how President Smith was curried for his attempt to dictait the political policies of the people of Utah.

Sutherland a Sycophant.

Sutherland a Sycophant. Sutherland a Sycophant.

But there has been a change. Now Sutherland says there was wisdom in the election of Senator Smoot. He says the President of the United States was acting the unwarranted part in warning the Utah Legislature against the step it was proposing. "What is it to the President whom the people of Utah choose to send to Washington to represent them?" he has roared.

"Who should care what the women of the country and the liberal element of Utah think about Reed Smoot's retention?" These and other things were in substance the expressions of Reed Smoot's ally. But down in his heart he curses the fate that makes it necessary for any self-respecting man to enter into such a bargain in order to secure such preferment.

Puzzling to Churchmen.

Puzzling to Churchmen.

One well-known churchmen, an official of standing, said to a Tribune representative yesterday: "I cannot understand how Senator Smoot hopes to secure peace for Utah and for our people' so long as he pursues the course he has this year. There was absolutely nothing for him to gain personally or for the Mormon people, when he undertook the control of the State and Legislative conventions. He could as easily have secured the election of whomsoever he desired to succeed Sen-

The Tribune wishes it were possible to say who has thus expressed himself, for the reason it would be an enlightenment to hundreds of churchmen and would encourage others to register their protest against the mad and senseless race which the over-weening ambition of the apostle-Senator is leading.

Utahns know that the entire transaction grew out of the impression made by Sutherland's fight on the election of the apostle—that the apostle felt he must have Sutherland in order to curb him and use, to a selfish end, Sutherland's Gentile friends.

The deal at first was one based on necessity. In its earlier stages Reed Smoot had no respect for Sutherland any more than any man can have for one of his fellows to whom he has been obliged to yield something in order to remove opposition. He has so expressed himself to one of his closest friends, one who after a few rounds with old Hy Balls, related the circumstance.

But the intimate association of the Sention with his new ally, the falthfulness of the latter and his effective service, has caused a growth of friendship between the two—a friendship born of necessity and mutual ambition. Smoot now fairly loves the man he subdued and Sutherland fawns and flatters him.

Why People Are Rebellious.

Why People Are Rebellious.

Why People Are Rebellious.

There are several thousand men and women in Utah who are willing to tolerate Reed Smoot as the head and backbone of the Republican party in Utah, so long as his motive was to defeat the opposition. But when the victory was won and the apostle-Senator began clearing the decks for the full play of his game as a real boss—when it became manifestly his intention to assert himself as the chief dispenser of the fruits of that victory many of these thousands found a rebellious spirit seize them. Some of these are sufficiently courageous to openly condemn the Senator Others, knowing the peculiar methods employed in Utah to punish those that opposed the leaders of the church, strangle their caths or pour out their hearts to men and women who likewise suffer. Not all of the complaints come from seekers after office. At most these constitute but a handful to the thousands whose real quest is not office, not position, not personal commendation for the part they played, but whose quest is—peace.

Not the Price of Peace.

Not the Price of Peace.

They know that there is no peace for the church so long as Smoot is the political boss in this State. They know that the compact between Smoot and the man who recently assailed him breeds not peace. They know that until Reed Smoot is taken in hand by the only power, locally, that can master him the fire of every enemy of the church and every opponent of boss control will be centered on him and the organization of which he is now the most conspicuous member. He is the most conspicuous member of that organization, too.

There are hundreds of thousands of Americans, readers every one of them, who if asked who is the president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints would not be able to speak that name. But not one out of a hundred of this number would be unable to name one of the aposties of the church. They all know of Reed Smoot. Not that Reed Smoot has accomplished any noteworthy thing for his church or for his country. Not that his personality has impressed his name on the public mind. Not that he has won a niche in the hails of fame, where names are remembered for their eminence, but because Reed Smoot has been a disturber of the peace of his country and his State and his people.

Why He Provokes Criticism.

Why He Provokes Criticism.

He sought a place in the United States Senate over the protest of the President of the United States and more than eighty million patriotic Americans. He was not satisfied with the ill-got authority, but, in face of a tremendous public protest, he reached out as an ecclesiastic for additional power. He serves notice on the country that so far as Utah is a part of the Government he is henceforward to be the embodiment of that part.

He seized an opportunity to rid from his path a man who worked successfully for Utah but who would not work for Smoot or Smootism. And in his atead he chose a man whose principal recommendation is his abilities as a flatterer and a sycophant.

chose a man whose principal recommendation is his abilities as a flatterer and a sycophant.

He overthrew a Governor whose persocial ambition conflicted with his own, who was not willing to yield them to the point of favoring this particular apostle, and nominated a man who, until seen by the apostle-Senator, doubtless had no ambition that extended beyond the portals of the business houses with which he is identified.

Senator Reed Smoot desired nothing so little as a man he could not use. He chose John C. Cutler to be the Governor-his Governor-because John C. Cutler has no will that could combat the will of Reed Smoot. He chose George Sutherland because Sutherland was willing to barter his opinions for the price of yieuang. And every deal was for Smoot. Party, church friends, the good of Utah or the peace of the people were subordinated to the ambitions of an ordinary man whose great desire is to be one of the ruling forces of the great Federal Government.

One Offensive Circumstance.

One Offensive Circumstance.

There are some things connected with this barter of the Utah Legislature which add to the offensiveness of it.

One of the gentlemen whom the progressive people of Utah have paid the honor of saying would make an ideal and a conservative and a valuable Representative of the State, was the object of the most earnest solicitation for assistance before the election. But when Smootism leaped into the saddle, this man was not only told to go to with his ospirations, but left to hold the bag for a goodly sum contracted in the interests of the Smoot organization.

He was toadled to in the perfect fashion of the speophints of the committee until they had wheedled out of him, and his friends through him, a good-sized fortune. One of the mon who was the most solicitous sought to defeat his wishes for a favorable consideration as a candidate for the Senate by whispering to Legislators that the benefactor was in fact an "American":

Lance Corporal Leads His Men in Uniform Given Him by

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 24 .- A opy of the Kinado magazine, printed in English, but edited by Japanese, has been received here from Tokio. Among the articles is the story of "The Naked Hero," who has received the special attention of the Emperor and is talked about in all Japan. The article says that Lance Corporal Ohashi gained the sobriquet by which he is known throughout the army—"the naked hero"—in the battle of Chiu Lion Chong on May 1. The story is told as follows: Headed Charging Columns.

"Our readers will remember that in this battle troops had to cross several streams in order to reach the enemy's position on the other side of the Yalu. During the engagement the main body of the Imperial guards arrived on the left bank of the Aiho and found that they must cross the stream to attack the enemy, who were strongly posted on the right bank. There was no bridge, and Lance Corporal Chashi of the seventh company, Third regiment. Imperial guards, was selected for the honorable, but dangerous, task of wading the river to test its depth. Divesting himself of his uniform, and taking with him only a short sword, he jumped into the river, which he succeeded in crossing safely, despite the hail of bullets showered upon him. When he had thus demonstrated the fordability of the stream he was followed by the whole regiment, and the enthusiasm was so great that Chashi never paused to resume his uniform, which his comrades brought, but, naked as he was, headed the charging of the Imperial guards arrived on the ked as he was, headed the charging

The enemy's outposts having been carried, the column's advanced some 1000 meters to column's advanced some 1000 meters to where the enemy's artillery was posted at the top of a steep hill. Ohashi, still too busy to resume his garments, was again in the fore front of the charge, personally killing two men and making one prisoner, and it was remarked with wonder that although he had been a target and in the thickest of the fight, he did not receive a scratch. The Em-peror was much delighted when he heard of the exploits of Ohashi, and ex-amined with much interest the musket with which Ohashi killed his enemies.

What a Scientific Observer Has to Say About California.

Lieut. John P. Findley, while in harge of the United States weather bureau at San Francisco, contributed an article to a prominent magazine on the climatic conditions of California, in which the following statement appeared:

"Theoretically, California should furnish the best and most varied health resort and sanitariums in the United States. Within her borders almost evcry form of wasting disease should find the means of temporary, if not permanent, relief."

This theoretical statement, from an unbiased, scientific standpoint, is abundantly confirmed by experience. The cool and bracing coast climate, devoid of any trace of malaria, extends from the northern part of the State to the the northern part of the State to the extreme south. There is the choice between this cool, humid atmosphere and the dry, warm atmosphere of the inland valleys.

Of altitude there is yet a greater difference. From Plain Valley, 300 feet below sea level, to the upper Sierras, 7000 or 8000 above, any altitude can be selected, and comfortable homes be found.
